I was just wondering if Joe had back up copies of his site. We had so much information on there. It would be great if we had some of those old threads to place here.:unsure:

James you may be in luck as Joe closed the new Hinigugma so all the files should still be intact, best thing is to get hold of him and ask him for them <http://www.myhinigugma.com/images/fbfiles/images/Animation12.gif>

i will attempt to do that. Applebite already sent him an email letting him know we started MyHinigugma.com. I will try to see if we can get that information and try to add it somehow. It will probably be hard work since it is a different forum format than this one. It would have to be added manually.

Now I see the reason why Hinigugma was closed.
Reading his posts at FM you may all be interested to find why.
Yes I sent him PM regarding the creation of another Hini in honor for both of them Joe and Cindy and obviously the reasons why we do not want to just let Hini go and gone!

We all belong here.

Yes, I just read it and at least now we know why. For those who don't know why. He closed it due to the new law that, what he calls and I DO TOO, "feminazis" passed regarding "dating" type sites that involve immigration and international connections, etc. It kind of worried him about him and cindy's process to get her US Citizenship. I can see his concern and at least we know he and Cindy and the boys are happy and doing well. We wish him the best and hope he stops by and pays us a visit. Never understood the whole thing about that crazy law they passed. Can someone explain it further in detail?
