It's so important to make time Coastie even if it's a few minutes. My girl doesn't have much time to chat either but i make sure that i call her everyday :)

I do send her txt messages every day, evening and mornings, And she has called me several time, I would call her but my cell does not allow it. We both understand each others jobs and we do communicate much as we can. That we know we must do.

That's great Coastie because things can go horribly wrong when you don't communicate ;)

Thank you Excited of course the closest ones to my mom was my son and I and of course it's hit us the hardest, but one step at a time and things are getting better each day. Anyone with a mom that is living please treat her like gold and love her with all of your heart because mom's are so important in your life

Re:\m Back

Posted by Excited! - 2008/07/20 07:37

Sure did and its has cleared it up already. But, poor Josh can't take Imodium. So we are trying to keep him hydrated as much as we can and call Doctors tomorrow if he is still suffering tomorrow when we wake up.

We really do not know Rick but we ask his permission to continue what he started. we all knew Joe is the founder of Hinigugma and we wanted to continue the spirit of the forum and we would not want to see the site go.

We may not equal the historical Hinigugma but we will try to keep it alive . I say historical because there are lots of stories and history happened at Hinigugma .

EXCITED. the man who blew life and gave back to us in a new version named MyHinigugma will continue to support us . Suggestion concerning our forum is open.

Rick. you are one of us. thank you for coming back.
